Blue Valley Schools now on Twitter

The Blue Valley School District has found a new home on Twitter.

As part of its ongoing strategy to deliver stories of unprecedented academic success and unparalleled personal growth, the district is now using the social media service as an additional communications outlet for its parents, students, staff and community.

By “following” the district’s Twitter feed, or “tweets,” those interested will be able to stay up-to-date on student success stories, press releases and education-related links and resources through a more casual communications tool.

Twitter is just one aspect of the district’s social media presence, which also includes teacher blogs, RSS feeds and a Facebook page, found at <http://www.bluevalleyk12.org/facebook>.
