Greg DeYoung named new executive director of Information Technology Services

The Blue Valley School District has named Greg DeYoung as the new executive director of Information Technology Services. DeYoung comes to the district with extensive experience in IT management. Most recently, he served as director of campus technology at Eastern Illinois University. Prior to that position, he served as assistant director for information technology at the University of Illinois and as the director of information systems at Farm Credit Services. DeYoung will begin his position in Blue Valley on Aug. 1.

“I’m very excited about joining the Blue Valley School District and contributing to the success the district has already achieved,” DeYoung said. “I look forward to collaborating with teachers and staff to enrich the students’ education through embracing and integrating technology. We will continue to provide an Education Beyond Expectations by preparing and empowering our students with the necessary technology knowledge and 21st century skills while promoting life-long learning and discovery.”

DeYoung received his bachelor’s and master’s degrees and his graduate certificate in information technology from Eastern Illinois University.

“After a year-long search, we are very pleased to have Greg joining us,” said Al Hanna, deputy superintendent. “His background in IT leadership will be an asset to the district.”
